A Quarterly Journal on the Railways of the Middle East.

“Harakevet” means “The Train” or “The Railway in Hebrew. Since March 1989 it has also been the newsletter - the only newsletter - that specialises in the railways of the Middle East. Not only Israel but Lebanon, Syria, Jordan, the Sinai and Arabian Peninsulas and even Iraq and Iran and Palestine have featured, and the scope covers all aspects of early history (back to the schemes of the 1840s), through the Ottoman period, the Mandate period and into modern times. Naturally, in such a complicated region with such a complicated history, with names and borders changing frequently, it is hard to avoid occasional offence. But the magazine aims to use, in all historical articles, the place names appropriate for the period being described, without making any political statement in so doing. “Harakevet” is now a quarterly printed journal in A4 format, available by subscription. For convenience’ sake, each subscription normally covers a “Series” or “Volume” of four issues. Pdf versions of all issues from No. 89 are available upon request.
